STEP ONE

“We admitted we were powerless over alcohol—that our lives had become unmanageable.”

Step One of Alcoholics Anonymous is a crucial starting point for those seeking recovery from alcoholism. This step requires individuals to admit they have a problem by acknowledging their powerlessness over alcohol. This acknowledgment is not just a formality but a profound realization that sets the tone for the entire recovery process. This admission serves as the foundation upon which the subsequent steps are built, fostering an environment where honesty and openness can flourish.

Understanding powerlessness over alcohol is vital for anyone on the path to sobriety. It’s about acknowledging that despite attempts, managing drinking has been beyond personal control. This acknowledgment is a cornerstone of sobriety. By realizing the inability to control alcohol, individuals open themselves to change and healing. It marks the beginning of seeking help and support from others who have walked the same path.

The healing process begins as surrender allows for acceptance and understanding. Embracing your condition without attempting to control it lays the groundwork for sobriety, fostering a sense of peace and paving the way for continued healing. By letting go, you create space for personal growth and transformation throughout your recovery journey.

Tradition One – AA Unity

The magnificent unity of Alcoholics Anonymous is the most cherished quality our society has. Our lives, the lives of all to come, depend squarely upon it. We stay whole, or AA dies. Without unity, the great heart of AA would cease to beat, our world arteries would no longer carry the life-giving grace of God, his gift to us would be spent aimlessly. Back again in their caves, alcoholics would reproach us and say, "What a great thing AA might have been!"

"Does this mean," some will anxiously ask, "that in AA the individual doesn't count for much? Is he to be dominated by his group and swallowed up in it?"

We may certainly answer this question with a loud "No!" We believe there isn't a fellowship on earth which lavishes more devoted care upon its individual members; surely there is none which more jealously guards the individual's right to think, talk, and act as he wishes. No AA can compel another to do anything; nobody can be punished or expelled. Our Twelve Steps to recovery are suggestions; the Twelve Traditions which guarantee AA's unity contain not a single "Don't." They repeatedly say "We ought. . ." but never "You must!"

To many minds all this liberty for the individual spells sheer anarchy. Every newcomer, every friend who looks at AA for the first time is vastly puzzled. They see liberty verging on license, yet they recognize at once that AA has an Irresistible strength of purpose and action, "How," they ask, "can such a crowd of anarchists function at all? How can they possibly place their common welfare first? What, in Heaven's name, holds them together?"

Those who look well soon have the key to this strange paradox. The AA member has to conform to the principles of recovery. His life actually depends upon obedience to spiritual principles. If he deviates too far, the penalty is sure and swift; he sickens and dies. At first he goes along because he must, but later he discovers a way of life he really wants to live. Moreover, he finds he cannot keep this priceless gift unless he gives it away. Neither he nor anybody else can survive unless he carries the AA message. Realization dawns that he is but a small part of a great whole; that no personal sacrifice is too great for preservation of the fellowship. He learns that the clamor of desires and ambitions within him must be silenced whenever these could damage the group. The moment this Twelfth Step work forms a group, another discovery is made--that most individuals cannot recover unless there is a group. It becomes plain that the group must survive or the individual will not.

So at the outset, how best to live and work together as groups became the prime question. In the world about us we saw personalities destroying whole peoples. The struggle for wealth, power, and prestige was tearing humanity apart as never before. If strong people were stalemated in the search for peace and harmony, what was to become of our erratic band of alcoholics? As we had once struggled and prayed for individual recovery, just so earnestly did we commence to quest for the principles through which AA itself might survive. On thousands of anvils of heartbreaking experience, the structure of our society was hammered out.

Countless times, in as many cities and hamlets, we re-enacted the story of Eddie Rickenbacker and his courageous company. Like us, they had suddenly found themselves saved from death, but still floating upon a perilous sea. How well they saw that their common welfare came first. None might become selfish of water or bread. Each needed to consider the others and in abiding faith they knew that they must find their real strength. And this they did find, in measure to transcend all the defects of their frail craft, every test of uncertainty, pain, fear, and despair, and even the death of one.

Thus has it been with AA. By faith and by works we have been able to build upon the lessons of an incredible experience. These live today in the Twelve Traditions of Alcoholics Anonymous, which-- God willing--shall sustain us in unity for so long as he may need us.

Step One And Clarity

A series of simple questions convince him he is powerless

With four months of sobriety, I was facing a very dangerous (though not uncommon) confusion. Was I an alcoholic or not? A wonderful old timer eliminated that confusion and saved my life with Step One.

I was young when I reached AA, only twenty-five years old, and that created problems with identification with the AAs at the clubhouse where I attended meetings, who were all twenty to forty years older than I was. Because of their drinking they had lost jobs and businesses, houses, spouses, rolled their cars and lived under bridges. There had been DUI's, jail, prison time and serious health consequences.

I simply hadn't built up that same wreckage. I had been in the psych ward five times and been medically discharged from the U.S. Army, but none of the other stuff. They were real alcoholics alright, but what was I? Maybe I didn't fit in as an alcoholic. And, when you really got down to it, wasn't I too smart to be an alcoholic?

Obviously, I was confused, but I did have the sense to go to an old timer, who said, "You don't know if you are an alcoholic? Let's take a look at Step One. It says, 'We admitted we were powerless over alcohol.' Are you powerless over alcohol?"

I had to admit I didn't know.

"Well, what happens when you drink? Do you get drunk?"

Yes, I get drunk.

"Do you get drunk every time you drink," he asked.

Yes. Every time.

"So if you take even one drink, you get drunk?"

Well, yes.

"Do bad things happen when you drink?"

Absolutely. (I gave him examples.)

"But you go ahead and drink anyway knowing that bad things will happen?"

I nodded my head

"Doesn't that sound like you are powerless over alcohol?"

I had to admit it did.

“Well, if you are powerless, you probably shouldn’t drink that crap should you?”

No, I shouldn’t.

The old-timer smiled at me.

“Stick with that,” he said. “Don’t drink that crap and you can worry about whether you are an alcoholic later.”

His wisdom bought me time and saved my life. On top of that he had also helped me develop evidence that I was powerless over alcohol. That evidence was true then and it is still true today over 50 years later. Every day when I wake up, I am still powerless over alcohol. I have a fatal illness that will never be cured. So, each morning I ask a loving God to keep me sober for twenty-four hours and every day he does it. Of course, I do the footwork, but he provides the power.

Bob H. | Pinetop, Ariz.

Tradition One

These questions were originally published in the AA Grapevine in conjunction with a series on the Twelve Traditions that began in November 1969 and ran through September 1971. While they were originally intended primarily for individual use, many AA groups have since used them as a basis for wider discussion.

Tradition One: Our common welfare should come first; personal recovery depends upon AA unity.

1. Am I in my group a healing, mending, integrating person, or am I divisive? What about gossip and taking other members' inventories?
2. Am I a peacemaker? Or do I, with pious preludes such as "just for the sake of discussion", plunge into argument?
3. Am I gentle with those who rub me the wrong way, or am I abrasive?
4. Do I make competitive AA remarks, such as comparing one group with another or contrasting AA in one place with AA in another?
5. Do I put down some AA activities as if I were superior for not participating in this or that aspect of AA?
6. Am I informed about AA as a whole? Do I support, in every way I can, AA as a whole, or just the parts I understand and approve of?
7. Am I as considerate of AA members as I want them to be of me?
8. Do I spout platitudes about love while indulging in and secretly justifying behavior that bristles with hostility?
9. Do I go to enough AA meetings or read enough AA literature to really keep in touch?
10. Do I share with AA all of me, the bad and the good, accepting as well as giving the help of fellowship?

CONTRIBUTIONS

While contributions cover each group's rent and other expenses, the Seventh Tradition is essential to all areas of A.A. service. It is both a privilege and a responsibility for groups and members to ensure that not only their group, but also their intergroup/central office, local services, district, area, and the General Service Office remain self-supporting. The General Service Conference suggests that individual groups, through an informed group conscience, adopt a specific contribution plan tailored to meet the group's financial situation. Once the group's expenses have been taken care of the group may decide to further carry the message by sending money to the following A.A. service entities:

- The local district, which communicates directly with the groups, providing the district group conscience for the area assemblies, and serving as a link between the area delegates and the G.S.R.s.
- The area committee, which coordinates vital A.A. activities over a broad geographic area; sends a delegate to the annual General Service Conference; holds area assemblies to determine the needs of the Fellowship; and provides information at all levels of service.
- The local intergroup or central office, which may provide phone service for Twelfth Step calls and other inquiries; coordinates group activities; and facilitates A.A. literature sales, institutions work, public information, and cooperation with the professional community activities.
- A.A.'s General Service Office, which functions as a storehouse of A.A. information, communicating with members and groups around the world; publishes A.A.'s literature; and supplies information and experience to professionals and others interested.
